BORN.—On Sunday last, to Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Watson, a daughter.

Mrs. J. Dougall of Passburg, entertained eight of her lady friends at the Sanatorium on Tuesday.

Miss M. de Gentile, of Paris, and J. A. H. Paul of Lille, France, are registered at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium.

Mrs. R. W. Coulthard, of Blairmore, gave a card party to twenty-eight of her lady friends at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium on Monday.

We are closing our business at Frank. The balance of our stock must be sold as quickly as possible.—SOMERTON BROS.

G. E. C. Martin was in town on Sunday. Mr. Martin is about to put on the market a new sub-division, near the South Fork and called Maxton.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is sold on a guarantee that if you are not satisfied after using two-thirds of a bottle according to directions, your money will be refunded. It is up to you to try. Sold by dealers everywhere.

W. H. Fairfield, manager of the government experimental farm, at Lethbridge, arrived in Frank with his family on Saturday. They returned to Lethbridge on Monday.

If you want Jewelry, etc., at sacrifice prices you cannot afford to overlook this sale.—SOMERTON BROS., Frank.

W. Diamond, international board member of the U. M. W. of A., was in town from Michigan on Tuesday, and addressed the miners at a meeting held here in the afternoon.

At the Methodist conference just held at Calgary, Rev. W. T. Young was appointed to the pastorate of Knox Methodist church. He will assume his duties here immediately after Rev. K. Kingston leaves, which will be about the 1st of July.

A. Wicart, president of the West Canadian Collieries, gave a dinner to the manager and office staff of his company and to several invited guests, at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium on Saturday evening last.

Miss Paul, deaconess of Knox Methodist church, occupied the pulpit in the church on Sunday evening last and delivered an excellent sermon. Her subject was "Paul's Mission to the Gentiles." The church was crowded and at the close of the service, Miss Paul received many words of praise for the splendid manner in which she conducted the service and for the able manner in which she handled her subject.

The village will shortly commence work on the building of a side walk from opposite the coal chute to the west end of town. The coal company will build a sidewalk from the Sanatorium to connect with the one to be built by the town. The sidewalk will be on the north side of the street.

Considerable improvements are being effected on the grounds near the new Sanatorium. The weeds are being torn up and the ground nicely leveled in front of the building. A bridge will shortly be built across the river at the back of the building, the old buildings near the Sanatorium are being torn down and numerous other improvements made.

CHEAP RATES TO FRANK

Commencing Saturday, June 3rd, and continuing each Saturday and Sunday until September 30th, the Canadian Pacific Railway will give cheap rates over their line between Lethbridge and Macleod and Frank. The return fare from Lethbridge will be $3.20, and from Macleod $2.25. These rates were asked for by some of the Lethbridge and Macleod people some time ago, and we are sure that the people of Frank will be pleased to learn that their town has become such an important centre and, indeed, a great attraction. These cheap rates will be a further inducement for people to visit the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium, and enjoy the beneficial qualities of the great Frank sulphur springs.

A. Ghesquier, secretary of the West Canadian Collieries, and Maurice Mettrier, mining engineer of the Frank government, were in town for a short while last week.

Lame shoulder is almost invariably caused by rheumatism of the muscles and yields quickly to the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is not only prompt and effectual, but in no way disagreeable to use. Sold by dealers everywhere.

A. Wicart, president of the West Canadian Collieries, was in town this week and appeared to be favorably impressed with the general appearance of this place. Mr. Wicart visited the coal mine during his stay here.

If you are not satisfied after using according to directions two-thirds of a bottle of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, you can have your money refunded. The tablets cleanse and invigorate the stomach, improve the digestion, regulate the bowels. Give them a trial and get well. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Application has been made by J. A. Callan for wholesale liquor license to be granted to premises situated on lot 8, in block 6, Victoria street, Blairmore. This will be considered by board of license commissioners at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium, Frank, on Wednesday, June 28.

Frayer & Sinclair of Blairmore, agents for the United Mine Workers of America at Hillcrest. The building will be eighty feet long, thirty feet wide, two stories and will have a large basement. The ground floor will be used as a store while the upstairs will be made into a hall. The successful contractors sub-let the excavation and cement work to E. Morino. The building will be completed in the course of another four or five weeks.

It was decided at this meeting to distribute rations from Frank to the other local unions in the neighborhood. Those locals are, Blairmore, Lille, Bellevue, Hillcrest, Maple Leaf, Passburg and Burns.

Upwards of $10,000 worth of rations were received from wholesale houses and opened up, by the miners' union, at Frank, on Monday afternoon last. They are using the new store now. Watson's and from this place the distribution of rations for the other camps will be conducted until the coal miners strike is over.

W. Turner, principal of the school, asked to be granted a vacation from the time the school closes for the summer holidays until the first of January next.

It was moved by trustee Frayer and seconded by trustee Lyon that the board accept the tender of T. Ede for the purchase of $5,000 worth of school bounties at 5¢ per cent and the tenderer to give a premium of $15—carried.

Miss Turner, principal of the school, asked to be granted a vacation from the time the school closes for the summer holidays until the first of January next.

It was moved by trustee Frayer and seconded by trustee Lyon that Miss Turner be granted a release and that secretary advertise for a teacher to take the principal's place until the end of the year. This was carried. The secretary was also instructed to advertise for another teacher, one having second grade. This will mean an increase in the teaching staff made necessary by the increased number of scholars.

The matter of the large addition to the school house was brought up and thoroughly discussed. It was decided to proceed with the work immediately after the end of the summer term.

"It cured me," or "It saved the life of my child," are the expressions you hear every day about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. FAREWELL SERMON

Many will regret to learn that Rev. K. Kingston, who during the past six months has been pastor of Knox Methodist church, which position he has with great credit to himself and with entire satisfaction to the large number of members and adherents of the church, is about to leave Frank. Mr. Kingston will deliver his farewell sermon on Sunday evening next and will leave Pasco some time next week for wider fields of usefulness.

The Emperor of the Air

Story of an Aviator Who Was Too Ambitious

By ALLEN G. LAMOND

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

It was my part for months to use a party telephone wire with all its annoyances. I have waited for half an hour at a time while two women discuss a domestic problem or bit of gossip—before being able to call up some one with whom I needed to communicate immediately.

My telephone is in the upper hall, near my bedroom. One night I was awakened by a sharp ring. Jumping out of bed, I went to the telephone and took up the receiver.

"Well?" I said.

No reply.

"Hello, central!"

No reply.

"Hello! Hello! Did you call me up?" Then there was a lot of clicking, at the end of which a woman's voice said:

"For heaven's sake, John, come at once! Bring help!"

My name is not John, and I knew the message was not for me, but some one was in trouble, and I realized the importance of getting the address at once.

"Where shall I come?" I asked.

"W.H., I'm Ethel. I'm at home."

"Oh, dear—where am I?"

The telephone clicked just as the connection was not broken. I inferred that the receiver had been dropped rather than shut off. Then I heard a dialogue between a man and the woman who had been talking to me. The man spoke first:

"The emperor of the air. In my sarcophine I ride above the clouds. I am always at war with the worms crawling on the face of the earth. When I like I swoop down and stay them with fire and sword or from my sarcophine in the sky drop bombs upon the world."

I did not hear this plainly and distinctly as I have written it. I simply gathered enough to fill it out. Then the woman said:

"Go to bed. You have to fly up to Mars tomorrow. Don't you remember that Marlians have sent for you?"

"You are right. I have nearly 30,000 miles to make. When I return I shall publish an account of my trip. I shall tell the world all about the Marlians. That will solve the greatest planetary problem of the age."

"So you will. Now go to bed and get a good rest preparatory to your journey."

"Ethel, you're trying to fool me! If you say anything more I'll kill you. Do you suppose that I, the emperor of the air, need rest? I'm not mortal. I'm the embodiment of one who flew up over the Andes and never came down. He was received up into heaven and became a god. I made him emperor of the air. I am no human being still trammelled in my flights. Say another word and this shall be sheathed in your breast."

For the sounds I then heard the man seemed to be driving the women out of the room.

There was a mingling of voices as they receded until they were lost. A door that before had been closed probably had been left open as two persons were out for a hand a stock ticket, and presently it struck 11. Then I heard voices again—other voices evidently in a different locality.

"Is that you, Tilly?"

"Yes, You're Miss!"

"I have a letter. I've just got a letter from Sam. He says we must be married on the 13th and sail the same evening. Isn't it terrible?"

"What's terrible?"

"Nothing, to be married and go on a wedding trip on the unlucky 13th."

It was evident that the scene had changed and I was likely to get no further information of the woman in distress. I dropped the receiver, ran into my room, dressed, and, having written down the address, I telephoned that I might as well forget it. I had forced to afford relief to the troubled soul. I knew of no such street as Merton avenue, but reasoned that it was not far from me, since its phone was on the same party line.

There is one thing about the matter that I have not mentioned. The voice was one of the softest, most melodious I ever heard. While I was listening to it, while dressing and as I called the receiver back to the girl, for the voice seemed to indicate that she was a girl—pleading with the man to go to bed and get the needed rest for his journey to the planet Mars. It was evident to me that she was shut up with a lunatic, and I dreaded lest she be murdered before I could reach her.

I hailed an empty hack, told the driver to take me to St. Merton avenue and be quick about it. He asked me what it was, and I told him it was St. Merton avenue. "I know it," he said, and find it at once. I would pay double fare. With this I got into the hack, banged the door, and the coachman drove on. Where to go he didn't seem to know any more than I did. After going around and round for a few minutes and running every corner, he bailed a policeman, who sent him in a different direction from any he had yet followed. My first thought was to take the policeman with me, but somehow I couldn't bring myself to share with him one iota of pleasure of relieving a woman in distress. This is, it would not be too late for any one to relieve her.

The driver finally stopped in the middle of the street. I opened the door and asked:

"Miss, have you found Merton Avenue?"

"This is Merton avenue, sir," was the reply, "but I can find the number."

He drove back and forth, while it seemed to me that I should go wild with impatience. The policeman finally caught me sight of a number in the distance—78—I jumped from the hack and hurried along the street till I found No. 78. The house stood by itself, no other being within a hundred yards. I ran up to the door and tried to open it. It was locked. Dismayed, without ringing, I went to the rear and fortunately found a window unlocked. Entering, I ran into the lower hall and stood softly upon the floor. There was a small rope. Armed with this, I suddenly appeared at the door of the room within which I heard the voices and exclaimed:

"A message for the emperor of the air!"

In the room, pacing back and forth and brandishing the sword, was a young man about twenty years old. A girl of eighteen was following him about, talking with him in a voice of great distress. Both turned at once on hearing my voice.

"Are you the emperor of the air?" I asked the man.

"I am."

"I have been sent to you by the king of space, the ruler of infinite ether, to tell you to come to me. I make a machine that will bear you not only to Mars, a neighboring planet, but to Neptune, the most distant, and thence to the fixed stars."

A Marlian, I proposed, had to Mars awakened confidence at once.

"Where is this machine?" he asked.

"I am depured by the king of space to conduct you to it. Come. I have a carriage ready. You must depart before the removal of dawn."

The knife dropped from his hand. Instead of using it on the girl he kissed her and followed me down to the carriage. Having whispered to the coachman to drive me to a police station, I got in beside the emperor. On arrival at the station I beckoned to a policeman, who came to the carriage.

"This is the emperor of the air," I said, passing the policeman's arm by way of introduction. "He will be here by noon."

I told the sergeant at the desk my story. He hunted up the address of an insane asylum, and in half an hour, without even using the rope weapon I had provided, we had him under confinement.

From the asylum I drove back to the house from which I had removed the patient. Though it was late, I knew the young lady would be waiting for me to tell what had happened.

On arrival I rang the bell and was met by a maid. She questioned me eagerly with her eyes. I told her that the young man was where he was safe from himself and could not injure others. Then I asked her if she was his mother.

"He is my brother," she said. "Unfortunately he has sufficient means to indulge in aviation. His ambition has been to sail higher in the air than any one else. Last Saturday he broke his neck in a crashing glide and struck a rebar a restaurant which broke his machine and injured him severely. Within the past few days he has acted so strangely that the servants became afraid of him, and all left us in a panic for fear of what had happened."

Past the hour I once dared to afront the czar, with the result that he sent a note commanding him to leave St. Petersburg, where he had been born, for a number of concubines, and a twenty-four hours. The czar had sent for him and paid him a great compliment, but is said to have received the chilly response, "Sir, I am a Pole."

Scrubbed the car.

Paderewski once dared to afront the czar, with the result that he sent a note commanding him to leave St. Petersburg, where he had been born, for a number of concubines, and a twenty-four hours.

After locking the house I escorted Ethel home. The home of the son of her brother-in-law, a wretchedly poor life, and she remained there for the night. The next day I called upon her to assure myself that she had not suffered from her distressing experience, but found that the reaction had kept her in bed.

The rest of this story is not to be told except so far as it concerns the young aviator. He recovered within a brief period, but was persuaded by his sister to let aviation alone. She had a great success in business, but understood that it would be impossible for him to indulge in it without great distress to her, to say nothing of the probability of its undermining her health.

I am not to part of the story which I have said is not to be told. I will simply say that I owe the great happiness and success of my life to that which I formally decried—a party telephone wire.

There is one thing about the matter that I have not mentioned. The

CLEARED HIS CLIENT.

Aaron Burr's Dramatic Accusation in a Murder Trial.

It is undoubtedly true that in recent years the man in the country was considered more important and more creditable to save a man's life or liberty than to get a verdict where property only was concerned. These days have passed, however, as far as New York is concerned, and in a lesser degree in other parts of the United States, and despite the agitation on the subject they are never likely to return. It is interesting to turn back to the earliest days of the republic and the career of two lawyers who became known throughout the land and in any country and who were antisocial in character and purpose—Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr. Both men accepted criminal as well as civil cases. One of the greatest efforts of Hamilton's life was his appearance before Congress in behalf of a man who was a scoundrel and a swindler (then Thomas Jefferson). The court was divided in its verdict, but the prisoner was never punished.

Aaron Burr, that erratic genius who has been called the "maddest man who ever lived," is also reported to have lost a case in which he was counsel.

It is also reported that he was a queer trial of his associate counsel was Hamilton. It was a murder case. The actions and manner of the principal witness were so remarkable that Burr exceedingly suspicious, and it is said that both Burr and Hamilton were undecided in their own minds which was the guilty party—the witness or the prisoner. Hamilton's summing up was particularly brilliant. Burr was unable to add anything to it when the prosecution was leaning against a pillar. His face was pale and covered with perspiration. He listened intently to the lawyer. Suddenly Burr seized a pistol and pointed it at the witness, shouting, "Behold the murderer, gentlemen!" The witness turned and rushed from the courtroom and the prisoner was acquitted.—P. Ward in Harper's Weekly.

This is the last of the series of notes on the history of the law.

A BUNGLED CENSOR.

The Brilliant Genius That Used to Make Plays in Poland.

In 1869 there was a very strict censorship throughout Poland over all plays given in the theaters. It was, of course, very annoying to the actors, and sometimes quite ridiculous. Much more serious was the fact that the censors were not always as good as the actors.

Every noble sentiment was forbid denied. Among some words were found "slavery," "in one of the melodramas it was claimed that the slaves were not slaves," and the sentence which read, "He was a slave to his passions," was changed to "He was a negro to his passions."

Another occasion the actor taking the role of a Roman Catholic priest tried after one tries the czar. Miss Granville says, and she is surprised that more American women have not tried it. She does not regard the danger as being greater than that taken by occupying automobiles. The director of the theater thought the actress described as much greater than those of bounding over a country road in a touring car.

Miss Granville began her ballooning as a pupil of C. S. Rolls, the young English showman who was killed while making an aeroplane flight in England last summer.

Miners Conduct

Themselves Well

President W. B. Powell, of District 18, U. M. W. of A. and International board member

Diamond are busy holding meetings throughout this district. President Powell is advising his men to stand firm to the union principles and to not resort to any disturbances whatever. He has his men so well trained and the law of good conduct and many principles so instilled in the minds of the miners throughout this district, that a better conducted crowd of black diamond diggers cannot be found in this Dimension.

The Value of Churches

That the churches in any community exercise a most potent influence for good, is conceded by all except the most rabid and blatant infidel whose egotism and self-conceit blind his mind to the inestimable value of Christianity.

There is not a man in our town, however indifferent to the claims of Christianity, would want to rear his family

now if there were no churches or church influence, for he at once recognizes them as the guardians of the morals of the community. What would be the condition of this community at the end of the next five years if from this time until then the churches were closed? To what extent would life and property be safe?

To those who pretend to not see any good influences radiating from the churches, we submit the following:

A successful man of the world, who had large holdings in a certain city, was asked what was his estimate of the value of Christian religion in his community as a business proposition. "What would you take for your property, if there were no churches and Sunday schools in this city?" He responded, "if there were no churches

nor Sunday schools in this city,

I would advertise all my property for sale at five cents on the dollar as I load my personal belongings on the train to move away. I am a 'know-nothing' in politics, an opportunist in religion, but I tell you

I would not live in a community that was destitute of churches.

Even this materialist, this man who was living solely for the things of this life, was able to appreciate profoundly the value of the church to society.

Happenings in and Around Blairmore

The person who got it into his muddle that Blairmore would not be able to feed the people who would attend a 12th of July celebration, had better wake up or else repair to the woods and there die.

Proprietor Burton has seen fit to change the name of the "Cardston Star" to "Cardston Globe." The nosy editor has probably made such recommendation as a little town like Cardston is not sufficient to entertain the beguiling pretensions of a fakir "Thomas."

Frank is noted for wonderful things. It has a "Knox" Methodist church and a lady who can very creditably conduct services therein. Such an eminent person as the Rev. Dr. Chown said that Frank had the only Knox Methodist church in the whole world. Frank has also the only lady preacher in The Pass.

The eight wonders of the world! The pyramids of Egypt; the Temple of Diana at Ephesus; the hanging gardens at Babylon; the Colossus at Rhodes; the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus; the statue of Zeus at Olympia; the Pharos (or light-house) of Alexandria in Egypt; and Louis Thebaud (or "Coxie") of Blairmore.

Mr. Thebaud has puzzled us all. After spending nearly six days in the wilderness which was entirely void of simoom or chinook winds, with starvation staring him in the face, with Death hotly following in his trail, after his many friends had given up all hope of ever seeing him alive again, and after the editor of this old rag of freedom had sadly and humbly prepared an obituary notice, Louie emerged from the bush and appears before his friends as the greatest wonder of the Crows Nest Pass.

The waitonians are having good luck with the graylings on the Old Man river these days, and some fine strings of fish have repaid all who repaired to spend a quiet hour by the river side.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Sedgwick of the South Fork were in town last Friday. Mr. Sedgwick returned home in the evening but Mrs. Sedgwick is still in town as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Dain.

The Orangemen are mustering their forces to be in evidence at Lethbridge on July 12th. If it was not for the confounded stupidity of some of the Orangemen of the Crows Nest Pass would be coming here for the twelfth. A more idle place than Blairmore, for such a celebration cannot be found.

The local branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will give an entertainment in the Central Baptist church on Monday evening next. A lengthy programme, consisting of speeches, singing, recitations, readings, etc., is being prepared. Refreshments will be served at the close of the programme. There will be no admission charged but a collection will be taken up to help defray expenses. A pleasant evening will be spent by all who will attend.

The plans and specifications for the new Presbyterian church are now completed. Tenders are being called for and the work on the building will immediately follow. The building will be 32x48; will have a tower, 10x10, on the north-east corner and will have a basement. It will be erected on Dearborn street, opposite the C. P. R. station. It will have a seating capacity of over 200. The building will be so erected that an addition may be made thereto, whenever the congregation will make it necessary, at a small expense.

At a meeting of the Western Coal Operators Association, held at Macleod last week end, it was agreed to meet the miners at Frank some day this week.

AN ANGEL.

There Was Mischief Afoot,
and She Located It.

By MARTHA MC-WILLIAMS.

Margaret came from the orchard whistling cheerfully, a beaded basket of jewel red apples poised carefully upon her bare brown head. Miss Prudence Heathcote, her aunt and guardian, frowned at the whistling, but had to smile a bit when Margaret burst out: "Now, Prudence, precious, come at me with the saying about whistling girls and crowing hens; I know you take my solo musical accomplishment, but this day is enough to set a graven image whistling, even dancing, if it was of anything softer than granite. You ought to be out in it. I be orchard in a place enchanted. I don't know what you think would beapple gathering and elder making would set themselves to music."

"Hm!" Miss Prudence said. "Hm! May I ask if Jimmy is out there, as he promised to be?"

"Oh, no! A gentleman keeps his promises, doesn't he?" Margaret answered, tossing her head, but flushing in spite of herself.

Again Miss Prudence said "Hm!" There appeared to be nothing wise to say. But after a brief interval she got up and went over to the kitchen, calling out: "And of course he'll be here to dinner. That means cooking things. Men do have such atrocious appetites."

"I'm glad they do," Margaret retorted shamelessly. "I've got one to match anybody. Oh, Aunt Prue, do make a pot pie! Make it very rich and creamy and lots of thick, sweet, red lemon sauce."

"Go away, you baggage!" Miss Prudence said over her shoulder. "Who told you what Jimmy likes best? I've the greatest mind to make dried apricots, just to set it in him that there's a difference." Margaret was shaking like a leaf, as near to laughing as to crying.

Thus Margaret came upon them and called out roughly: "It's to be really Uncle Jimmy?" Well, I don't mind so much, she said, but I do mind that you say it's to be anything in the world you say." Jimmy snorted, daring to her. Then as he caught both her hands and laid them against his breast he turned a beaming face upon Miss Prudence, "Peggy, you're right in your arms. I was shaking like a leaf, as near to laughing as to crying."

Jimmy snorted, daring to her. Then as he caught both her hands and laid them against his breast he turned a beaming face upon Miss Prudence, "Peggy, you're right in your arms. I was shaking like a leaf, as near to laughing as to crying."

"Then there's mischief afoot, what sort I've got in with you, Miss. I do hope you'll ignore me when I call on the doorstop, 'for if ever any lad was clean out of his head, clean idiotic about a chit of a thing, it was Jimmy about you, all last week and all the days before it. Since you came to—"

"Mischief afoot, but where?" she kept mentally repeating to herself as she whisked about the trim kitchen, her brows puckered, her eyes introspective. On the surface she could see no reason for the trouble, but there was no reason to be interfering between the pair. Jimmy was an orphan, the same as her Peggy. Moreover, he had never had the least shadow of an entanglement. True, various and sundry young women had been setting their cap at him—had even called him a good set—but he had overthrown them all unmercifully, it were. Miss Prue gave a great start. There was the root of the trouble; its name, Vidella Bane. Jimmy had rather made up to her in the weeks just past, and she had been telling him that she thought of it he had gained Jimmy's church two Sundays running, besides buying many things for her at the strawberry supper and fair. And Delia it was well known, wanted to marry and settle herself. She had three young sisters, including her in the house now. Naturally she would be the woman who could hold Jimmy, the best chance in all Eastern town.

But how she had done it! Miss Prudence could not fathom, although she had been the problem closest to the detriment of her dinner. Jimmy grieved her and the dinner rumpus and talked a great deal of his appetite and of many other things, but somehow did not eat with his usual zest, although he made a point of it with every meal a palatable could help doing that, with such things as Miss Prudence set before him. Jimmy assured Margaret more than once that if such cooking ran in the family her future husband was the kindest fellow alive.

"I think so too. That's why it's so provoking not to have him come along," Margaret said at last. "Only think, Jimmy, I'm almost twenty-one and have never had a real business benefit. Isn't it shameful when Aunt Prue has to tell me all her pretty dishes and the Heathcote girls. Fancy an heiress without a sweetheart!"

"Such destination is painfu—so painful I hardly believe it exists," Jimmy said, turning away his head, then breaking inconsequently into talk of something else.

Miss Prudence, watching him, saw that his teeth had set before he could speak. Of the seeing cause enlightenment in part. She meant to make it whole before she was much older. So soon as Jimmy was over six feet, Miss Prude would open an office of her own. She herself drew Jimmy on to the 'b' with a pretext of wanting his advice as to the new hairstyle and stalk. She was a straight speaking person, womanly, without courageous. As soon as they were inside, she strolled space and whistled under Jimmy's chin. "Jimmy, you know what 'How cool and bold story has Delta Bane told you?'"

"Who said she had told me anything?" Jimmy retorted. "Besides, she didn't need to. My eyes are fairly trustworthy."

"Sure or it?" Miss Prudence asked. "If you are, please let me tell you what they have told you about my Peggy."

"I know you think you've got a grievance—no, not exactly a grievance, but a hurt."

"It is a hurt, but I don't blame her for it. I can't. She—she must have met the other fellow first." Jimmy said, turning away his head. Miss Prudence started to speak again. "What other fellow?" she demanded.

"Jimmy answered miserably:

"The one I saw her kissing and hugging Saturday out under the chestnut trees. She was all dressed up in her best, and she never knew, and they were carrying on like little children. I never seen them. I—I started to go when I heard her talking, but after I caught a word of two I snaked away like a whipped bound."

"No, she didn't. Miss Prudence said again, "I saw her talking to me, and you snaked off?" Went straight home, I reckon, and after supper over to the Bananas. That right?" Jimmy nodded.

"Now tell me straight what Miss Delta told you and how she came to do it."

"I won't!" Jimmy said stoutly. "I'm not strong enough, and Delta knew it had made no mighty miserable. All she did was to set me right—let me know Margaret was."

"Playing pay acting with her?" Miss Prudence broke in. "Did she tell you what she was up to? What the girls have been putting on in the schoolroom, what's she able? Delta was dressed up in men's clothes and my Peggy playing sweetheart to her. I know. I was there up on the big dead trunk, nodding the play book and laughing to kill. Now, if you'll look around the other way?"

"You—you don't mean there isn't any other fellow?" Jimmy cried incredulously.

Miss Prudence sniffed. "Of course I'm not. You're not for a safety razor?"

I asked, getting smirkingly suspicious.

"No, don't even use one. Still that night b' a good idea. I'll think it over."

And I went away shortly afterwards wondering if I shouldn't buy a safety razor or a safety stock.

The safety razor was bound to the market, and my brain began to whirl with ideas. I am still engaged in investigations—Exchange.

SMOOTHNESS OF CHIN.

Is the Safety Razor the Cause of the Modern Fashion?

Bearded chin were the order of the day in Canada some thirty years ago, but now just a photograph of a man of thirty or forty taken in the seventies. You will find that he had a bearded chin. Just why there are so many bearded chin nowadays, is hard to explain. Perhaps Sir Edmund Walker and his wife took up the old tradition in Toronto. So do Senator Cox and Mr. George Good, but they communicate with S. Edward and his son so not.

My barber says his says,

"How's business?" said

"Good," he replied, "in spite of the safety razor."

"Explain," please. I don't quite understand."

"Well, we do very little shaving of men now. Soon we will do nothing but hair-cutting, singing and shapenoughing. The result of the old-fashioned razor there were many men who couldn't shave themselves or who were afraid. These men were called 'barber's patients.' You will tick them out in the case as you come down in the morning—the great unshaved. By noon, they had stolen time to get a shave in their room. They shave themselves and special men were more popular, and their time for getting shaved was pretty regular. Now, if you will look around the room, as you come down in the morning, there are all clean chins. That is the safety razor."

"That you hate it?" I broke in. "That would be foolish," the philosopher replied. "We make the best of what men save on shaves they spend on taking care of their hair."

SUFFER GREATLY FROM COLIC

Mrs. Alma Guenette, L'Innacoue Conception, Que., writes: "My little boy suffered greatly from colic. I gave him ear oil and other medicines without helping him in the least. One day, saw Dr. J. W. Owen Tabitha advertised, and wrote for a box. I found them so good that I always keep them in the house and would use no other medicine for baby." The experience of Mrs. Guenette has been that of thousands of other mothers. Not only do the Tabitha cure colic, but they cure constipation, vomiting, indigestion, make babies bright, active and happy. Price $1.00. Send to nearest dealer or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Keep Baby's Skin Clear

Mothers, do you realize the importance of caring for baby's tender, easily irritated skin? Neglect or unsuitable methods may give rise to simple rashes or tiny sores. Torturing, disfiguring humors follow and threaten to become permanent. Not only is Cuticura Soap the purest and sweetest for baby's bath, but assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it affords the speediest and most economical method of clearing baby's skin and scalp of eczemas, rashes, itchings and irritations, and of establishing a permanent condition of skin and hair health.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by all dealers. Price 10c per box. Postage, 1 cent. Post Free. Boston, Mass., send for free Cuticura book on care of skin and scalp.

Callings One Never Hears About Until Enumerators Get Busy.

The taking of a Census proves once more the truth of the adage that one-half the world does not know how the other half lives. How many people have heard of a time-seller, an evaporation, which is not overcooked?

For centuries there has been there such a trade or trade which is classified, in fact, but only because it is followed by one person—a lady.

For centuries, too, there has been carried on by one family: first the father, then his death by wife, and now by the daughter.

The original founder of the business, however, was a master jeweler at Greenwich, and he then sold the time to various watchmakers and jewelers.

His death the same year, however, entitled his daughter to certain privileges.

She, in turn, sold the business to her wife, and now the daughter follows her.

Another little-known trade is that of a certain physician who rendered

"Yes, I can give you some loose change," replied the gentleman he addressed. "Take the train to with a sixpenny fare of Glasgow and come back again."—Tit-Bits.

Young But Wise

In a school in a Western Ontario town a little girl had not taken quickly to the mysteries of addition.

"One 'in one,'" asked the teacher, while putting the class through the easiest of the addition tables. The little girl, however, was the only person in the class who couldn't give the answer. "Two 'in one,'" asked the teacher. The little girl said nothing, but noticed by the teacher, said "Shoe polish."—Toronto Canadian Courier.

He had Backache for a Long Time But Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured It That's Why He Recommends Them.

Dymont, Ont. (Special).—John Ober, a postmaster here, and a man throughout this entire neighborhood, is telling his friends that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the cure for all forms of kidney disease. And when they ask how he knows this is the answer he gives them:

"I was troubled with Backache for a long time and Dodd's Kidney Pills cured it. That's why I recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from Kidney Disease."

And the postmaster is not the only one in this neighborhood who has found Dodd's Kidney Pills to be the old reliable remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills. Others there are whose Rheumatism has been cured, while Diabetes and Heart and Uterine Troubles have been cured. For if the disease is of the kidneys, or caused by the kidneys being out of order, Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure it.

SCOTCH IN EVERYTHING.

Marquis of Bute Keeps Up All the Old Customs.

Another son has been born to the Marquis of Bute, who is one of the few millionaires English peers, his father leaving an estate which was valued at over £100,000,000.

His acres in Scotland are of exten-

Not Guilty

In the supreme court at Macleod on Friday last before Justice Black, Michel Rosse of Blairmore was found not guilty on the charge of attempting to interfere with the administration of Justice on February 23, last, by bribing Inspector Belcher of the R. N. W. M. P. In the case of Antonio Nicollotti, charged with attempting to "murder" William Hewittson at Blairstown, on February 20. The jury was out five minutes. Nicollotti was tried on Thursday and the jury late that night brought in a verdict of acquittal.

PROGRESSING FAVORABLY

Rate-Payers of Blairmore Held a Meeting on Monday Night and Voted

IN FAVOR OF INCORPORATION.

Many Leading Citizens Present and Supported the Motion

At a meeting of the rate-payers of the village of Blairmore, held in Budd's hall, at 8 p.m. on Monday evening last, for the purpose of having Blairmore incorporated into a town municipality, the following motion was put:

"We, the undersigned, rate-payers of the village of Blairmore, in the province of Alberta, assembled in Budd's hall, Victoria street, this date, Monday, May 29th, 1911, hereby authorize the village council to apply on behalf of the said village to the Lieutenant-Governor of the province of Alberta, for the erection of the village into a town municipality."

The foregoing motion was carried by a large majority. Amongst those who were present and who voted for the motion were T. Frayer, W. A. Beebe, D. A. Sinclair, John Angus Macdonald, H. E. Lyon and L. Dutil.

Two months from this date will have to elapse before Blairmore can be legally called a town. A notice of application by the council to the Lieutenant-Governor for the incorporation of the village into a town, must be advertised in the local paper for one month, and the application after being forwarded to the Lieutenant-Governor in council, has to lay in abeyance for one month.

So by this it will be necessary for us to see the last of July before we will be able to call Blairmore an incorporated town. The law makes the work slow but we will get there.

Conciliation Board

A meeting of the conciliation board, appointed to settle the disputes between the miners and the coal operators of this district, will probably meet at Frank about the middle part of next week. Rev. Dr. Gordon, the chairman, is unable to leave Winnipeg before the 5th of June.

Coleman Notes

The Al G. Barnes animal circus showed here on Wednesday. Quite a number of people were in attendance.

The Coleman and Frank football players met on the grounds in the park on Saturday evening last and played a well contested game. The home players won with a score of one to nil.

We notice by our local excitement, the Coleman Miner, that the upstairs of the brewery at Blairmore "will be beautifully celled with Iceland brick mahogany."

We must admit that "Iceland brick mahogany" is a new one on us. Next.

INSTALLING MACHINERY

West Canadian Collieries Increasing Their Blairmore Plant.

FIRST-CLASS AND UP-TO-DATE

Are Having Large Boiler, Generator, Engine, Fan, Etc. Installed

The West Canadian Collieries are installing more machinery at their Blairmore mine, and are enlarging the boiler house and power house to make room for the additional machinery.

A new boiler of one hundred and fifty horse power has arrived and is being put in place along side several others in the large boiler house. In the power house they are installing a two hundred horse power engine and a seventy-five K. W. generator to assist those already there in giving all the power required. A new fan, with a capacity of about 150,000 cubic feet of air per minute, and a new one hundred and thirty horse power motor which will be used to drive the fan, have just arrived and are being installed on the hill South-East of the main entry to the mine.

With the installation of more machinery, the Blairmore mines and plant will be well equipped and in first-class condition. The most casual observer will admit that the West Canadian Collieries aim to have their mine plants so complete as to leave nothing lacking for the safety and comfort of their employees. The West Canadian Collieries and the town of Blairmore are very fortunate in having as general manager of the mine a person so capable of filling that important office as Mr. R. W. Coulthard.

Now ceased to fall for the first time since Sunday night; the clouds rolled away and that long-since fatigued traveller was delighted to catch a glimpse of the fiery monster which rules the day. He immediately scaled a mountain, took his course and proceeded in a northerly direction. He walked all that night and was still walking when a search party, consisting of John Angus Macdonald, J. Longhead, R. Slugg, J. Fisher and "Soapy" Smith, found him at 6:30 o'clock on Saturday morning. Louie saw Dick Slugg passing along on horseback and the former hailed him. The other members of the party soon saw the strayed traveller and immediately there was a glad re-union. Louie Thebaud, whom everybody thought was dead, was given some warm drink and a little bread. He then went to sleep for about two hours, after which he was put on a horse and taken to Blairmore and from thence to the hospital at Frank where Dr. Mackay and his able staff of nurses gently took care of him until he was able to move about on Monday.

On Friday morning the weather had not abated but Mr. Thebaud dauntlessly resumed his wearisome journey, hungry and foot sore. Late in the afternoon the search party had started on their journey and found the object of their search about seven miles south of Blairmore.

Mr. Thebaud had wandered around in the forest all alone without food or shelter. It was not until Friday afternoon that it became known in Blairmore that Louie Thebaud had left the South Fork at the above stated time. Knowing that he had not arrived in Blairmore, the people became anxious and a search party was immediately organized. They left at 4:30 p.m. same evening. After considerable difficulty in passing over trails where heavy wind falls, coupled with snow from three to four feet in depth, had piled, the party halted for the night, and bright and early on the following morning they started on their journey and found the object of their search about seven miles south of Blairmore.

he was fifteen miles south east of Blairmore. He further believes that he would have been able to reach Blairmore that day even if the search party had not found him.
